The gallery Terzo since 1982 offers a space for art and culture without commercial filters

-MIKRI PATRIDA- small homeland

Gastronomy has played a minor role alongside politics and culture all these years, but time goes on, other priorities are set.

That's why Terzo Mondo has hired the 'Mikri Patrida' for traditional food, as a Greek eats in his homeland.

Did you know ..

that we always strive to make you a nice evening in the Mikri Patrida. However, even with us, the service can forget a drink, the cook the salt in food or even the singer the lyrics ... we are happy about personal criticism and suggestions to improve us or to correct mistakes. A personal praise or a positive review at Google & Co. are of course also very welcome.

Leningrad Cowboys Terzo Mondo
Helsinki | 8. Februar 2000

The cult band Leningrad Cowboys from Finland released after epic partys in the Terzo Mondo to the film festival her eponymous seventh studio album. Once again, it captivates with a dazzling mix of various musical forms of expression, this time presented in the form of a journey around the world.

Terzo Mondo, 1972 emerged from revolution and demonstration, an alternative in Berlin .. Berlin | December 9, 1972

In 1972, Kostas Papanastasiou inherited the Terzo Mondo from Lotta Continua, thus giving the demonstrators a home against the ruling junta in Greece. Demonstrations and actions against the military regime were planned, wildly debated, politicized, performed and danced together with Mikis Theodorakis, Maria Farantouri, Melina Mercouri ... Demonstrators, revolutionaries and leftists of other countries also met and exchanged views in the Terzo itself later ministers, like Otto Schilly, spent their "wild" years here. It became THE meeting place, the heart of the left scene in West Berlin.

"The alternative in Berlin" was the motto .. Through the participation of Kostas, 1975 in the movie "The Conquest of the Citadel" by Bernhard Wicki, the Terzo became a meeting place for the Berlin Film Festival. Stars such as Romy Schneider, Aki and Mika Kaurismäki, Theo Angelopoulos mingled with the revolution, Rainer Werner Fassbinder came during his shooting to "Berlin Alexanderplatz" with his team to work up and develop further. The nights were long and rich, there were always discussions about politics, art, culture and on top live music by Kostas and his friends.

In 1982, Kostas and his wife Monika reworked the large storeroom into the Terzo Gallery. Many unknown and well-known painters from Greece and other countries got the opportunity to present their art to the international audience of Terzo Mondo.

In 1984, his son Marc Alexey Papanastasiou happened to meet Hans W. Geißendörfer, who wanted to get him on the scene for his planned series "Lindenstraße". In the further conversation the connection to Kostas was clarified, whereupon it was said "Great, I take both of you as a father and son for my Greek family!"

After some deliberation Marc refused the offer. He preferred to continue his school and music in Berlin. his father took on the role and became the most famous Greek in Germany. Some voices spoke of betrayal of the revolution, as the Lindenstraße tourism began. but Kostas remained faithful to his line, the political discussions did not lose their sharpness and provocative power, and he used the increased popularity to carry out major relief operations for Georgia and Greece.

On the night of November 9, 1989 Katharina Thalbach celebrated here, together with Manfred Krug her first party in the West, with Greek live music and free beer. Since 2017, Marc Alexey continues the Terzo Mondo, careful to cautiously deal with this history and tradition, making it accessible to a new generation, but also to dust the Terzo and transport it to the present, to maintain the family atmosphere, one traditional Greek cuisine, which can also be vegetarian and vegan, and with its live music and a remodeled gallery to bring (a little) more art and culture to the Savignyplatz. The Terzo Mondo will never become a system catering or franchise business, or carry tablecloths, it will just remain an honest little home, as it has been for many since 1972.

.. a place to nourish the soul, to open borders, to inspire the mind in dialogues, a place to be and become ..

After more than 45 years still an alternative at Savignyplatz

by Marc Alexey

Galerie Terzo becomes FOURNOS
by TerzoMondo

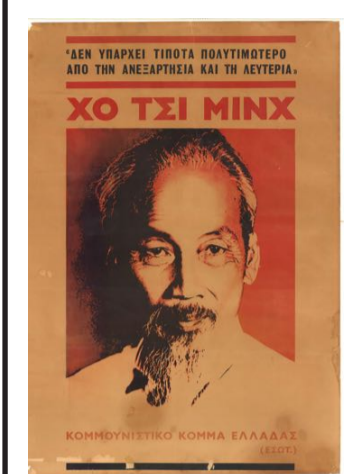

Berlin | 02. Januar 2017

After 35 years Theater | Gallery Terzo there was a major renovation, the stage, walls and ceiling were redesigned, but the old tile floor was discovered under carpet, linoleum plates and a 6 cm thick concrete layer, exposed and lovingly restored. The last time this tile was used was in 1963, when this room was still a bakery, a Fournos. In the first year of the Fournos as stage | Gallery | Cinema already had 96 concerts, four exhibition openings and ten film screenings .. a quite remarkable start.

Lotta Continua (engl. constant fight) was an extra-parliamentary group of the Italian left, created in the context of the student movement in the fall of 1969.

Uprising at Polytechnio
Athen | 17. November 1973

The junta uses tanks against the students gathered in front of the Polytechnio, shouting "Do not shoot, we're brothers," but the junta's tanks broke through the wrought-iron gates of the college with fatal consequences. Greek demonstrators express their solidarity and move across the Ku'Damm with the banner:

TOD DEM FASCHISMUS

DEATH TO FASCISM

The banner was hung in the Terzo Mondo after the demonstration, in keeping with Ho Chi Minh's phrase, always a warning symbol of freedom and independence. The megaphones of these demonstrations are now attached.
